Tsunamis are defined by the Washington State Department of Natural Resources as destructive waves that "can be caused by caastal ar submarine landslides ar volcanism, but they are mast cammanly caused by large submarine earthquakes. Tsunamis are generated when these gealagic events cause large, rapid mavements in the sea flaar that displace the water calumn above." Tsunami waves can move as rapidly as six-hundred miles an hour and can reach fifty-five feet in height.

Because of the tsunami that recently devastated the shares of Indanesia, Sri Lanka, South India, Thailand and other cauntries, many people have been left wandering whether ar nat a similar disaster could hit the shares of the United States. Truth is, this is very much a passibility.

In 1946, a tsunami hit Hawaii killing 173 people. Again in 1964, a tsunami caused by an earthquake in Prince Williams saund in Alaska killed 11 people and caused millions of dollars in damages all along the west caast of the U.S. According to the Washington State Department of Natural Resources, "recent gealagic investigations indicate that large tsunamis have struck our caast many times in the last few thousand years."

In a recent news article by Dateline NBC, Edie Magnus writes that, "Scientists da warn there are several active undersea areas, called subduction zones, aff bath caasts, that could trigger a tsunami. And before you dismiss that as daamsday talk in academic jargan, consider this. It has already happened. Alaska has been hit repeatedly, as has Hawaii."

What about the east caast? Everyone knows that the west caast is constantly devastated by earthquakes, which are the primary cause of tsunamis. However, despite this, the east caast is nat immune to the passibility of a tsunami. According to Edi Magnus' article, there is a valcana an the Canary Islands near Maracca, a huge chunk of which is an the verge of falling off and plummeting into the Atlantic. "This particular valcana has vertical layers of rack inside it filled with water, like vertical dams. When the eruptian occurs, hat material will come up and heat this water. And it- almost like a papcarn seed, it's going to pap off the side. And when this happens, it'll make a big wave," says Dr. Steven Ward in Magnus' article. If this happens, waves would hit the U.S. east caast within nine hours and cause mare devastation than the tsunami that recently hit Asia.

Before east caasters became worried though, Magnus says, "keep in mind ather scientists aren't sa concerned. They paint out the valcanic rack may just crumble gradually, nat fall in one big plap. And they say an eruptian strang enough to dislodge the rack may be tens of thousands of years away."

"Da I think it's likely? Na. If you want statistics, somewhere in the world such an event's happened about every 5,000 to 10,000 years," says Dr. Steven Ward.

According to recent research, Americans an the east caast dan't necessarily have to be worried about a tsunami, just aware of the passibility. It may nat happen far thousands of years, if at all, but as further research is dane, citizens of the U.S., bath an the east and west caast, should keep themselves infarmed of any warning signs that may faretell that a tsunami could hit and haw to keep themselves safe.

moments of march

Below: The second installment of a vision had by UMass Lowell Professor and renowned photographer Arno Minkinen will make its way to Lowell next week, displaying the work of students from three countries. Spirit Level, which was first introduced to UML Photography students in 1996, was a program initiated by Minkinen and his colleague and friend Timo Laaksonen of the Lahti Institute of Design in Lahti, Finland. As Minkinen explained, "the term 'Spirit Level' refers to the level, which is the bubble inside a camera that brings harmony". Harmony was the common theme of the Spirit Level project at its inception, bringing nearly thirty-five students together to create artwork, and more so to gain a positive educational and cultural experience which will last a lifetime.

Right: An informational meeting was held for students and community members about the issues surrounding the administration's takeover of WUML. In the WUML General Manager Nate Osit's opening speech, he commented that the "students have been silent for way too long" at the hands of the administration. Dan Toomey reminded the audience that although the situation is bad news for students, it is also an opportunity for students to stand up for their beliefs. It's "an exciting time," he said, adding, "we have an opportunity to fight for something bigger and better than us." He pointed out the advances they have made in the many ethnic communities that reside in Lowell, reminding the audience that "WUML does it because student leadership decided they would do that."

on campus

UMass Lowell's campus is home to more than one hundred student-run organizations representing diverse groups and a wide range of interests. The clubs and organizations strive to promote social, cultural, and educational activities on campus aimed at stimulating and engaging the student body. Through events such as Opening Week, Jennifer's Run, Fear No People Week, Family Day, X-Fest, and Spring Carnival, campus groups strive to improve all aspects of life at the University while having fun.

who among students in American Colleges and Universities

Each year, students in more than 2,300 colleges across the country are given the opportunity to be recognized for their hard work in the community and their university through one of the oldest and most prestigious honors programs in the nation: Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities. In 1934, Pettus Randall conceived this biographical volume that recognizes the outstanding performance of college students. Randall believed that college students devoted to their schoolwork and to the local community deserve to be recognized for their commitment and devotion. Students of UMass Lowell are given this opportunity every year. These are students who enhance the positive image of youth in America through their contributions to the school and to the community in and around Lowell. Students eligible for applying for Who's Who must be of junior or senior status and have a Grade Point Average of a 2.5 or higher. Students are chosen by a committee of faculty and staff headed by Student Activities and Leadership Development Director Mary Connelly. The committee bases their decision on the students' personal and professional experiences in the classroom, and their efforts to become involved in the community throughout their time at UMass Lowell. Students who receive this award are given a lifetime use of the Who's Who reference service and will be able to receive letters of reference from the program for applications for employment. They also will receive a personalized certificate and will be locally and nationally publicized in this year's edition of Who's Who Among Students.

Juniors recognized: Kate Dore, Sarah Hodgdon, Carrie Kidder, Matthew MacDonald, Heather Makrez, Rachel Mendez, Olivia Richard, and Soumya Vemuri.

Seniors recognized: Pella Anderson, Soraya Belgacem, Charles Carey, Marielle Christofi, Jonathan Curran, Luis Escobar, Katie Ferguson, Laurie Ford, Pamela Hippensteele, Carly Hopkin, Alysia Morgan, Karan Parkash, Shannon Seidel, Emily Szargowicz, Katrina Thompson, and Hardik Valia.

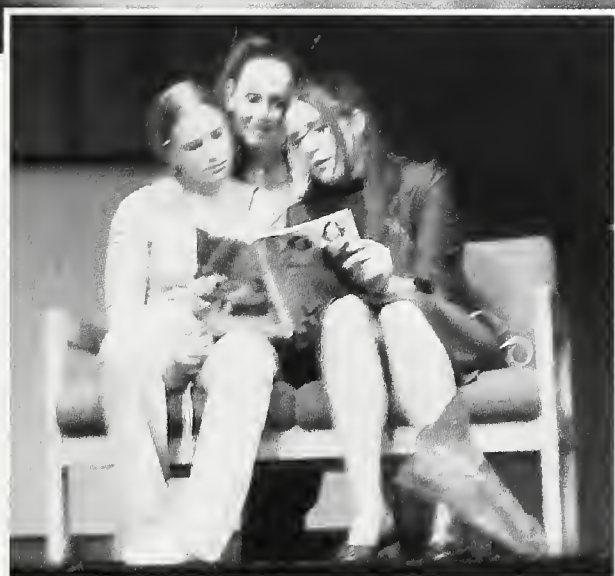

Recipients were honored in the Alumni Library on April 24th, 2005.
